

Eileen Flynn was nominated to the Teaching Council to represent management bodies at primary level. Eileen is a member of the Disciplinary Committee. She is General Secretary of the Catholic Primary School Management Association (CPSMA) which is based in St. Patrick's College, Maynooth. In that role, she specialises in supporting and advising management authorities in primary schools and in the provision of education and training. Her educational interests include the promotion of lifelong learning for adults and the role of management in supporting learning. Her hope for the Teaching Council is that, in regulating the teaching profession, management can work in partnership with all others represented on the Council to support teachers so that they may deliver the best for the students entrusted to their care.
