

General Biography

I am an Assistant Professor in the School of Education, Trinity College Dublin. A core belief I have is the capacity building opportunities research-practice partnerships such as RiRS offer all of those involved, both researchers and practitioners in schools. I would be delighted and honoured to work with schools seeking to work together to focus on either (1) Leading Learning or (2) Supporting Teachers' Learning. Both of these Cosán learning areas connect to my areas of expertise, spanning teacher/ school leader learning, school evaluation, and school leadership and improvement more broadly. I welcome this opportunity to collaborate with school communities interested in these areas.