

Una Murray | Trinity College Dublin

General Biography

I am Teacher Educator in post-primary education with the School of Education, TCD with specific responsibility for PME students. I also work as a Professional Placement Tutor other providers of ITE. I have considerable experience in teaching, assessing, and mentoring in initial teacher education especially in the areas of pedagogy, literacy and numeracy and school placement. I am particularly interested in the area of transition between primary and second level from all perspectives. In general, research with practising teachers as part of the RiRS panel would open avenues to bridging the gap that often exists after qualification between theory and practice. From a personal perspective, such collaboration with schools would enhance my understanding of the ever-changing challenges in the classroom, and consequently enrich my work in ITE.